It has been an extremely busy time since I took the ARVP role with the new Ontario Regional Team. We lost many experienced regional team members and simultaneously we went through unique and complicated challenges, especially Vaccination Attestation, Leave 699, Duty to Accommodate, working from home issues. As a regional team member, my primary focus was supporting members with accurate and timely communication. During this process, I collaborated with national UNE executives, received inputs and expert advice from UNE- LROs, communicated with members in various ways to share tools and resources available, actively listened to members with the highest empathy, helped them decide and choose their options, and went through their diverse experiences and employer communication challenges during their critical time. There is a lot more need to do, and I wish I do better for them.

Supported Local for Vaccination Attestation: Huge effort has been made to make aware of members of government policy for vaccination attestation. This involves educating myself through participation in UNE and PSAC information sessions, discussing within the regional team, reviewing resources, talking to local executives, supporting members with tools, actions, and responses.

Member Engagement Effort: Efforts have been made to engage the local union executive team to offer services related to Vaccination Attestation issues in the workplace and around their community. Email communication and group discussion continued in varieties of ways in many locals; received feedback; clarified the mechanism of communication with management, right and responsibilities, and union position.

Equity issues-Information Exchanged: Exchanged thoughts, shared Human rights and equity information among the communities, and with locals within Ontario regions.

Inter-component service: Served as an invited committee member of a committee for a member of visible minority dispute resolution of UNDE with the national office of the Union of National Defence Employees.
